A giant word of caution: Last year some of our growers paniced and plowed up peanuts that were infected with white mold at least three weeks too early. A field can stand a lot of damage to white mold before it damage to white mold before it will pay you to plow up a field of peanuts early. For example, if you are making 3, 000 pounds per acre and you have five white mold hits per 100 feet of rows, this would result in a 5% reduction in yield. At the present price of the present price of peanuts, this would be worth about $30. If you had 10 hits, of course these peanuts had 10 hits, of course those peanuts lost would be worth about $60. WITH FERRIN COX

Everyone around here has been catching it for some time after ye ole editor discovered three very special books missing. Apparently we weakened, broke a rule and let someone get out of he office with two copies of the Fred Watson book, "Coffee ounds," and a copy of Marion Brunson's "Pea River Reflections." Each was signed by the author and one of each had ye ole editor's name also. One copy of Coffee Grounds only had The Elba Clipper written inside, but it still belongs HERE. If anyone remembers borrowing either of these books, please return it. If any of you ever see someone with one autographed to us by the author, and it is someone else's library, then they borrowed it and well . . . they forgot to return it. Just remind

Mayor Robert Folsom has been telling me of some plans to expand the Elba Recreation complex. When I say "Okay, go," ole Bob explains how it is, he hasn't got everything quite ready yet, but is working on details still. Well, I just can't help but believe that the Council members will support him 100% on such a project, 'cause they, too, have voiced support for a strong ecreation program in Elba. They have shown by their willingness to commit money to recreation that they are willing to give more than lip service to the matter. The good mayor says we need more tennis courts, more ball fields and a new swimming pool . . . It is hard to admit Bob is right, but we agree

Two summers of work by National Guard units have done the fill work to extend the Elba airport and get it ready for paving. Now some repair work is being done by city crews to prepare it for The State Aeronautics Board has run short of money for such work, but by some fast pencil-pushing, cooperation by Dr. Rainer of the highway department, the money has been borrowed from one fund and will be replaced when available. Our reports ndicate Representative Jimmy Holley did a lot of the work to get this done, and may have even sharpened a few of the pencils from time to time. This is just another step forward for a community that is showing positive signs of progress, and a eather in the cap of those woking for that movement forward.

The competitive nature of Elba-Enterprise folks runs from warm to hot (never cold). Some weeks ago, during one of the debates on the location of the jail, the courthouse, the river, etc., a county citizen decided to help Enterprise. The decree was that they can have the sanitary landfill if they will dump it all downtown, on or about city hall (or something like that). A word of caution followed this offer. Another county citizen didn't want to "give anything" because the shock would be too great: but we feel we could "let" the people of Enterprise take the landfill. Some names were even mentioned as "Chief Keeper of the Garbage," but we will not get into that at this point.

Some of our subscribers from deep down in Florida came by this week and got into a conversation with wife, Heddy, about MY fishing. Now I have an invitation to come down and fish with a guarantee of catching fish! Heddy seemed to think this was a good idea as she related the incident to me later, but it may be cause I would be gone for a while and out of her hair.

My dear ole granddad, the late J. L. Kimbro was a weekly newspaper editor for years, and very outspoken at that. He owned the Opp News during the mid-1920's before selling it and some of his outspoken editorials. A sports writer for the Montgomery Advertiser quoted some of his writings in last Sunday's paper. Now, Granddaddy was also a Primitive Baptist preacher, and had some pretty strong beliefs. Well, it seems in 1927 he was not getting along with the Ku Klux Klap, baving installing the words of the wrote with the Ku Klux Klap, baving installing the wrote mix. In the ditorial, he invited any member of the Klan "who could ommunicate with pen and paper and weren't afraid to sign their names, to explain what their organization had accomplished."
There is no record of his getting an answer. Other out-of-step opinions was opposition to high-school athletics and especially op football. (He finally saw an all-state scholarship-winning grandson play in the early 1950's.) He was also openly opposed to "forced" Bible reading in the schools because of the many different denominations and creeds among school children. It was dangerous to even mention the theory of evolution around we can agree the Klan never accomplished anything; forced Bible reading has been thrown out by the courts, evolution is still debated, but to condemn football . . . somewhere down the line ye ole editor inherited a different

One month later on September 18, 1858 the church adopted a motion asking for a letter of dismission from the Judson Association, in order to join the Zion Association which was Another proof of the trying times was that a very poor quality of ink was used for the minutes during the latter years of the war. It may have been diluted with water, and several pages have almost faded out. M. B. Halstead was elected clerk in August of 1861, and quarter hour course. Persons who have previously attended William Pritchett was called as pastor, but evidently did not accept at the time, however he was pastor in 1862, and may have served the latter part of 1861.

As the Civil War drew to a close very few people were able to attend. In one service in 1864 only the pastor and clerk were present, so no business was transacted. W. J. White was called as pastor on the Third Sunday in February 1865. During the same year J. W. Brooks was charged with dancing, but made acknowledgements to the church and was forgiven.

In September of 1865 the church passed a resolution asking the association to do away with all written statements of faith, and to use only the New Testament as its sole authority. In November of 1865 Middleton Brooks was again called as pastor, but refused to accept because some of the members were opposed to his serving. R. W. Davis was called as pastor on On May 11, 1867, New Ebenezer Church requested Shiloh to send a committee to meet with them to help settle a difficulty that had arisen among the membership. Shiloh sent James Grimes, T. J. Brooks, and M. B. Halstead.

On August 9, 1867, Shiloh voted to petition the "Houston Association" for membership. The Baptist Association in Houston County is known as the Columbia Association, and has been known by that name for many years. If it was ever known as Houston Association, we do not have record of it, so they

The difficult times of the past Civil War is reflected in several day in that they granted a women, Mrs. Musselwhite, permission elected a committee to meet with representatives of the New Providence Church, to consider the consolidation of the two congregations. New Providence was located one mile east of Elba, possibly where a Negro Baptist church is now located. The committee from Shiloh was made up of James Grimes, J. F. Holloway and M. B. Halstead. Holloway, and M. B. Halstead.

On May 15, 1869, the committee recommended the consolidation of the two churches, and moving the church site to Elba. As far as records indicate there was no Baptist church in Elba at the time. But, at the next conference, Shiloh decided against the consolidation. The matter was brought up again with was almost unheard of in that day, and this is a rather puzzling statement, but the record sheds no further light on the matter.

HISTORY OF SHILOH BAPTIST CHURCH

1883, Shiloh passed a resolution that each male member be authorized to "exercise in public in any way they felt pressed." This was a sort of blanket permission to preach, which was very unusual action by a church.

B. M. Stevens of Elba was called as pastor in December of 1883, and a committee was appointed to visit the Elba Church, and request the ordination of Stevens. The Elba Church had been organized in 1882. Stevens resigned from Shiloh on July 5, 1884 secause of ill health, and John Bradley was called as pastor the

On September 18, 1884, the Shiloh Church adopted a resolution requesting the Pea River Association to withdraw from the Baptist State Board, with the stipulation that if this was not done, the church would withdraw from the association. No further word is given as to what took place. On November 8, 1884 Siloam Church requested Shiloh to ordain J. W. Brooks to the Gospel Ministry. Evidently Brooks had been called to pastor Siloam. This is one of the churches that no longer exists in the county. D. C. Allen was pastor of Shiloh The Minutes state that W. Y. Moseley was called as pastor on Halstead, Clerk, "Owing to the awful calamity that prevails in the Confederate States, and that unholy war." He expressed the hope that God would intervene or not the church should be disbanded. Evidently the report was negative as the church continued to function. T.A. Taylor, T.J. Clark, D. Windson, J.W. Kennington, A.J. Brooks again, J.M. Moore, I.J. Johnson and T.J. Brooks.

On January 16, 1896, C.O. Helms and C.E. Lee were liberated by Shiloh "to exercise their gifts." The Alberton church requested Shiloh to ordain C.O. Helms to the Gospel Ministry on July 5, 1903. He was ordained on the third Sunday in August of that year, with J.W. Brooks, R.M. Hunter, A.J. Brooks, and T.J. Brooks serving on the presbytery. Helms served Alberton and many other churches in the area.

During the 1920's Shiloh became inactive for a period of time. It was revived around 1928 with a tent revival meeting near the home of Mr. Edmond Hatcher. Rev. Clem Johnson who was part-time missionary of the Coffee County Association probably arranged the services with the help of Judge J. A. Carnley and others. Several ministers assisted in the services including J. E. Plant. Twenty-five members were secured in the meeting.

The congregation decided to repair the old building, and then decided to raze it and rebuild using some of the materials from the old building. It was a difficult task in the heart of the Gread Depression, but building was completed enough to use.

The church continued active for ten or twelve years, and around 1940 again became inactive. When the writer came as Director of Missions for the Coffee County Baptist Association in the summer of 1946 the building was in ruins. Rev. John A. Jones took us to the site. Vandals had broken out all of the windows except two panes of glass that evidently had been overlooked. This in spite of the fact that woven wire had been placed over the windows.

The inside of the building was covered with broken glass, dust and spider webs. Although he was in his late Seventies Rev. J.

A. Jones enlisted the help of others and they began to clean up A. Jones enlisted the help of others and they began to clean up and repair the building. Being a retired carpenter as well as a minister, Jones did much of the repair work himself.

When the building was in shape to use, the Director of Missions arranged for a revival meeting with Rev. W. G. DeShazo of Enterprise doing the preaching. Interest was again aroused. Rev. Jones and others began regular preaching services. A Sunday School was organized on September 29, 1946 with 29 present on the first Sunday, and 35 on the next Sunday. The church has continued to function since that time.

Among the pastors since the church was reactive are J. A.

Among the pastors since the church was reactive are J. A. Jones, J. O. Jackson, M. L. Carnley again, Johnnie LaCarter, Bobby Sanders, Billy Robertson, Hoyt Cooper, Charles Black, John F. Sanders, and John L. Carnley.

In August of 1877 representatives of the church met with the Newton Association to request a letter of dismissal from that association. Circumstantial evidence indicates that Shiloh planned to join the Pea River Association which was formed that year. An annual association was planned to meet at Shiloh on Saturday before the 2nd Sunday in December, 1877. While the association's name is not given in the records, this was most likely the organizational meeting of the Pea River Association.

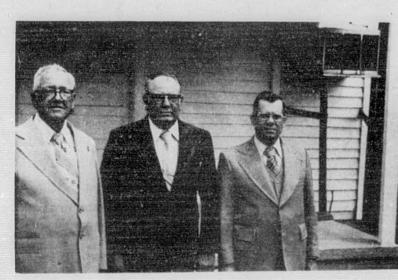

Black the auditorium was renovated and remodeled. In recent years the building has again been renovated. Plans are being made to enlarge the educational space now.

More recent pastors have been Hutto Brewer, Robert (Bob) Kelley, Glaster Compton, Donald Rushing, Joseph Aaron, Clinton Guthrie, and the present pastor Joe Hoyt Cooper, who is serving for his second time.

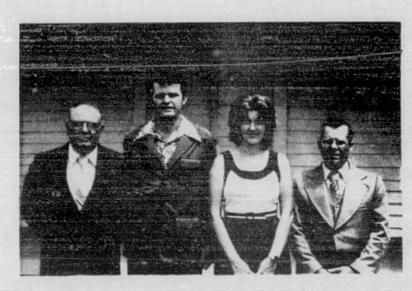

During its 122 year history Shiloh has had fifty or more pastors. Most of them serving only one or two years each. The list may not be complete as some of the records for the early past of this century have been lost or destroyed. Joe Hoyt Cooper has

I've been writing a lot about the Elba Athletic Club in recent weeks, but I forgot to mention one of their biggest projects -- the This year's program will be the biggest and best ever, with '76 pages' of news, pictures and stories about the Tigers and their opponents. I've heard a lot of talk about area football teams, and I thought I'd pass along a little of what I heard: Opp - big and strong, but weak in a few important positions; Zion Chapel ready to post another winning season; Kinston - possibly the Dogs' best season ever; New Brockton - a tough, hard-nosed team with a winning attitude; Ozark - on the way up; Enterprise - hurting a little after heavy graduation losses; Andalusia - bigger than ever; and Brantley - a question mark, opposing coaches. It should be an interesting new feature.

The softball season is over for the league teams, and I think everyone agrees it lasted too long! I just hope everyone will remember that next year when the schedules are being drawn up.
